I'm Growing Old
I can't believe in what I've read
Thoughts are running through my head
The fifties gave us Rock and Roll
Bannister's four minute mile
Buddy Holly crashed and died
I'm growing old

Elvis Presley gave us soul
Marlon Brando going wild
Jimmy Dean went for a ride

The sixties gave us Vietnam
He didn't give a damn
Martin Luther had a dream
JFK was a nasty kill
I'm growing old

We fought alongside Uncle Sam
Relationships were just a sham
The Beatles made teenagers scream
Mother's took another pill

Bridge

The seventies gave us peace
Girls were ripping off their bras
Abba invaded us from Sweden
We had the Doors we couldn't miss
I'm growing old

We made love and got obese
Gays had opened their own bars
The Clash was attacking Eden
We lifted our heels to look like Kiss

The eighties as I recall
Aids was the Gay Disease
Michael Jackson was a Thriller
Rubik's Cube got us thinking
I'm growing old

We knocked down the Berlin Wall
Girls could do as they please
Chernobyl was a baby killer
We banned driving after drinking

Bridge

The last twenty years have seen some changes
There have been rearranges
Lady Diana had to die
Steve and Brocky said goodbye
Thorpey died and went to heaven
We voted in a guy called Kevin
I can't believe in what I've read
Thoughts are running through my head
I'm growing old

The Twenty Twenties now are here
There's so much that we should fear
The worst bushfires ever seen
Drought breaking rains were just a dream
The last election Billy had it won
Scomo kicked them in the bum
Covid came and shut us down
Now no-one's going into town
